

House Concurrent Resolution No.

Whereas, the Federal Unemployment Tax Act provides states with federal funds to assist them in the administration of their unemployment compensation laws; and

Whereas, while currently there is no full and mandatory funding of the state administration of the unemployment insurance (UI) and employment service (ES) programs, H.R. 2962, the "McCrery Bill", would require full and mandatory funding for the state administration of the UI and ES programs; and

Whereas, under current federal law, when all of the federal accounts in the Unemployment Trust Fund exceed their statutory ceilings, the excess is distributed to the states through "Reed Act" distributions to maintain sound UI and ES programs; and

Whereas, the United States Congress has used what should have been Reed Act distributions to the states in the past to cover the cost of other federal activities, which has resulted in the underfunding of the administration of state UI and ES programs and excessive federal unemployment taxation to fund other federal spending; and

Whereas, H.R. 2962 would lower the statutory ceiling for the Federal Unemployment Account thereby increasing the Reed Act distributions to the states and puts in place a mandatory distribution schedule so that the states will actually receive more federal funds for the administration of their unemployment compensation laws; and

Whereas, while Missouri is currently receiving a 41.6 percent return to the state on the federal taxes collected in this state pursuant to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, other states such as Alaska, Wyoming, and North Dakota are receiving a 247.3 percent, a 117.8 percent, and a 110.1 percent return respectively; and

Whereas, the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, and the slowing of the economy have increased the number of dislocated workers and the unemployed, resulting in a greater need for assistance for such workers and placing an increased burden on Missouri's unemployment compensation system:

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the members of the House of Representatives of the Ninety-first General Assembly, Second Regular Session, the Senate concurring therein, hereby support H.R. 2962 and urge the United States Congress to enact such legislation to increase the Federal Unemployment Tax Act funds that are distributed to the states for the administration of their unemployment compensation laws; and

Be it further resolved that the Chief Clerk of the Missouri House of Representatives be instructed to prepare properly inscribed copy of this resolution for the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, the Secretary of the United States Department of Labor, and each member of the Missouri Congressional delegation.

Offered by Representative Gary Marble
